Actor Leonard Nimoy, who has appeared in several movies and television programs, and on Broadway, came to Juniata March 6 to discuss topics relating to his current series, "In Search of . . ." Nimoy, best known for his role as "Mr. Spock" on TV's "Star Trek," is also a poet, and while on campus, held a poetry session in Shoemaker Galleries.

Professor Sees Many Differences Between French, U.S. Colleges

In this era of American disenchantment with many of the nation's institutions, there's some good news about higher education: students here "work harder" than do their counterparts in France.

That's the word, at least, from Dr. Gerard Lepoutre, professor of physical chemistry at Catholic University in Lille, France, who spent last fall at Juniata College.

"When I've asked French students what their experience at Juniata has been like, the first answer has always been, I have learned to work," he says. "It's been good to see this process first-hand."

Dr. Lepoutre is referring to those students at Lille (actually, Catholic University's Ecole des Hautes Etudes Industrielle) who have studied at Juniata under a unique, one-for-one departmental exchange program.

He himself was part of the faculty exchange last fall, with Juniata's Dr. Ruth Reed, associate professor of chemistry, spending five months in France. In fact, Dr. Lepoutre was instrumental in establishing the student exchange program with Juniata.

Continuing, Dr. Lepoutre explains that the primary reason the French students report "working harder" at Juniata is "because here, they work in areas which they have chosen."

"At Lille — which, like Juniata, is a very demanding, highly regarded institution — the students follow a much more rigid program of study, with much less opportunity to pursue individual areas of interest. In short, the French students at Juniata work harder — and consequently, learn more — because they enjoy the freedom here to pursue individual interests."

Dr. Lepoutre further notes that at Juniata, which features a "program of emphasis" even more flexible than most traditional "majors," students are not only able to pursue individual interests, but greatly encouraged to do so.

"Indeed, one of my secret motivations for helping to establish the student exchange between Lille and Juniata was to enable the French students to experience the American system of higher education, with hopes that upon returning to Lille, they would advocate changes toward a similar system there," comments Dr. Lepoutre, who served as Lille's president from 1968 to 1971.

TEXTBOOKS ALSO MEAN "HARDER WORK"

The Frenchman, who became acquainted with American higher education in the early 1950s while earning a Ph.D. degree in physical chemistry at Yale University, observes another reason the French students must "work harder" at Juniata: textbooks.

That's right, textbooks.

In France, Dr. Lepoutre explains, most professors do not use textbooks, per se. Rather, they teach — and very successfully, he notes — through lecturing and distributing occasional "hand-outs," duplicated study-aids also utilized in America.

"Because the use of formal textbooks in France is so rare, our students were initially a little overwhelmed by reading assignments," Dr. Lepoutre says, adding that once the students have adjusted, however, "they really like having their own, personal sources of information."

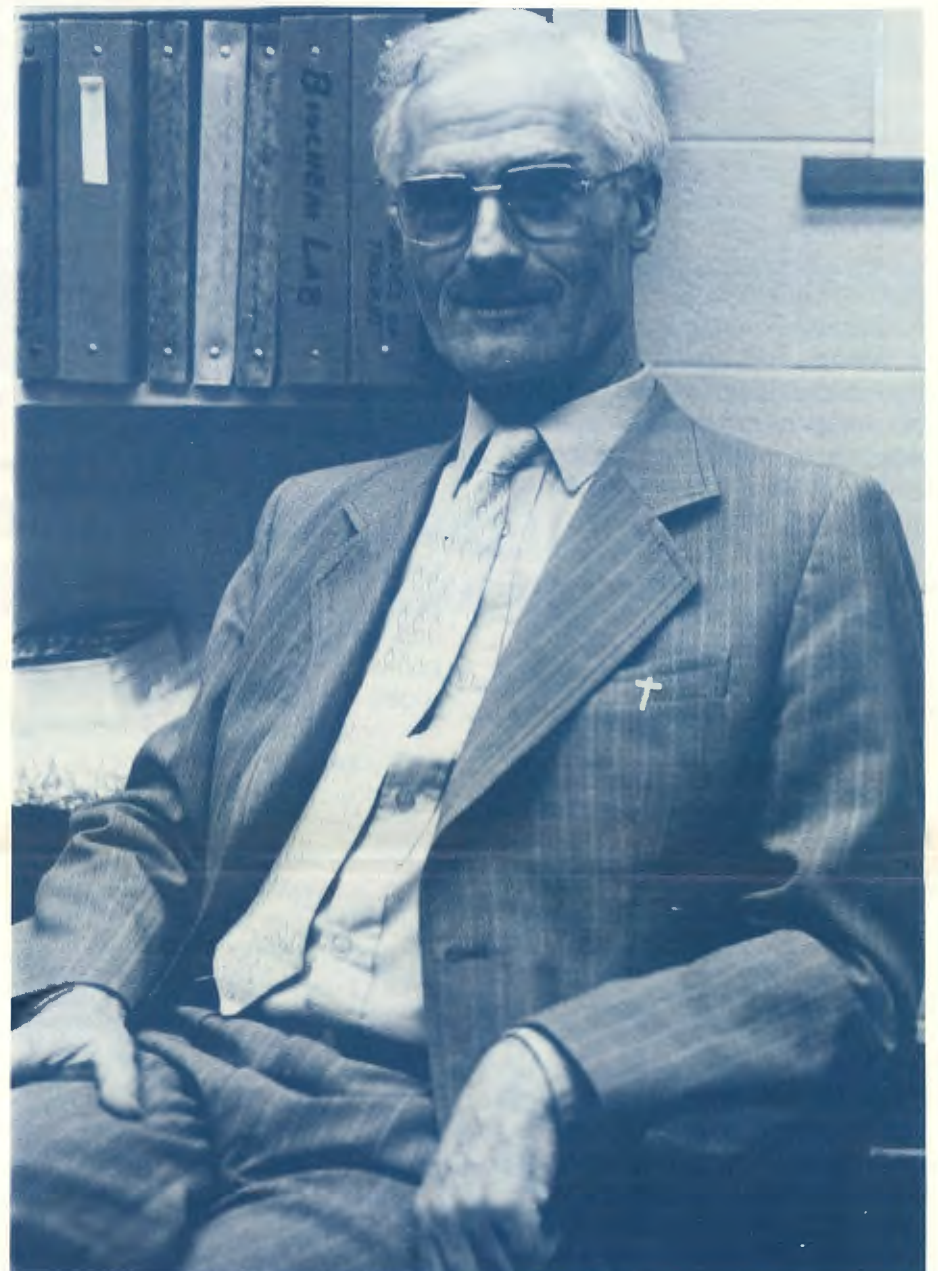

He further remarks that the students take their textbooks home with them, where they become something of "prized possessions." This, he comments, is "because textbook use in France amounts to each French professor developing his or her own textbook through lectures and distributed materials, with few actual textbooks published."

Another adjustment for the French students at Juniata is the amount of time they spend in the college's libraries.

Dr. Lepoutre explains that French libraries "are much less adapted for student-use," a condition which results in the French students arriving at Juniata without much background in how to utilize libraries.

"At Juniata, the (French) students are finding the excellent — and student-oriented — library facilities most beneficial to their research and day-to-day studies," Dr. Lepoutre says, noting that "it did take some time, however, for them to discover how to use the libraries."

Juniata has two libraries, the main L.A. Beeghly Library and the specialized Myers Science Library, both modern and well-designed facilities constructed in the mid-1960s. Myers, in fact, is housed in the unifying circular hub of the four-wing Brumbaugh Science Center, itself considered one of the nation's finest such facilities for a medium-sized college.

1945, observes still another "new" experience for the French students at Juniata — greater access to faculty members.

"I have been able to serve more as a priest here, in the sense of meeting with students, than at Lille," he says, noting that this is due, in part, to

Nat. Science Foundation Awards Research Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,200 grant to Juniata for undergraduate chemistry research to be performed on campus this summer. President Binder has announced.

Of the 503 proposals submitted to the foundation for funding this year, Juniata's was one of 193 accepted.

According to Dr. Dale L. Wampler, professor of chemistry, the grant will support six students working on five different 10-week research projects, under the direction of chemistry department professors.

"This grant gives undergraduate students an opportunity to do meaningful research that could answer some important questions," Dr. Wampler remarks. "This kind of experience, demonstrating initiative and creativity, will prove most beneficial to the students as they prepare for further study and for careers."

The five research projects will deal with the chemistry of model coal compounds, chemical solar energy conversion, photo respiration in plants, enzyme-related studies and the interaction of gases with gas shales.

Romanian Writer Teaches, Lectures Spring Term

Through a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts, Juniata is sponsoring Romanian-born novelist and poet Andrei Codrescu as writer-in-residence for the spring term.

Working with Ralph B. Church, associate professor of English and department chairman, Codrescu is teaching fiction writing, giving readings and lectures on and off campus, and working on projects with college and local organizations.

Born in Sibui, Transylvania,

President Binder welcomes guests attending the annual meeting of Huntingdon Business and Industry, Inc., held in Ellis College Center. Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh (right), featured speaker at the meeting, remarked on the college's success in attracting greater numbers of students at a time when enrollments nationwide are declining. At center is John Swigart, Jr. '61, president of HB&I.

Codrescu emigrated to the United States in 1966 after living briefly in Italy and France. His numerous novels, books of poetry and articles have been widely acclaimed in literary circles. A new novel, The Organic Princess, will be published this year.

Codrescu earned his bachelor's degree in mathematics from the University of Bucharest, Romania, and attended Wayne State University in Detroit. He has taught in California, Nevada and Maryland public schools, at San Francisco State University and Essex Community College in Maryland. Most recently, he was a visiting assistant professor in fiction at Johns Hopkins University.

Juniata's $4,500 first-ever grant from the National Endowment of the Arts was awarded in December under the group's Residencies for Writers Project. It will be matched with college funds, including monies from the Edith B. Wertz Endowment for Support of Cultural Events.

George Plimpton Speaks on Campus

George Plimpton, "an amateur among pros," shared his experiences in the sports and entertainment worlds with an audience in Oller Auditorium, March 30.

In humility rather than arrogance, Plimpton has let himself be out-matched in a series of extraordinary competitions, in which he fulfills the universal fantasy of challenging the champions.

Plimpton's lecture was as vivid as his books; Paper Lion, in which he related his experiences as a rookie quarterback with the Detroit Lions, and Out of My League, about pitching in an all-star post-season exhibition baseball game at Yankee Stadium.

Plimpton has challenged the pros in tennis, golf and boxing. He was nearly killed driving in a sports car race down Mexico's Baja Peninsula, and has joined the Flying Wallendas in a death-defying high wire act.

But sports activities are only part of Plimpton's "talents." He has been a percussionist with the New York Philharmonic, a stand-up comic at Caesar's Palace, a cowboy in a John Wayne movie, and an aerialist with the Clyde Beatty Cole Brother's Circus.

Educated at Harvard and Cambridge, Plimpton founded The Paris Review, and has been associate editor of Horizon and Harper's magazines. He recently edited "Writers at Work," four volumes of interviews with famous literary figures, and is director of the American Literary Anthology.

Plimpton's appearance on campus was sponsored by the Ellis College Center Board.

chairman since May, 1979. He is also chairman of the Pro Musicis Foundation, and serves as a director of the USLIFE Income Fund and the Fred F. French Investment Company.

Ellis resides in Kinnelon, N.J. with his wife, the former Jean E. Good, and four children.

Board Chairman Ellis Elected Executive Vice President at RCA

Charles C. Ellis '40, chairman of Juniata's Board of Trustees, has been elected executive vice president for long range financial planning at RCA in New York.

Ellis joined RCA in 1972 as senior vice president for finance, and became senior vice president for long range financial planning in June, 1980. Prior to his association with RCA, he was executive vice president and comptroller of the Irving Trust Company.

A native of Baltimore, Ellis received his M.B.A. degree from Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. After serving in the Navy during World War II, he worked for the Armstrong Cork Company from 1946 to 1953.

From 1953 to 1959, Ellis held several financial positions at the Ford Motor Company before becoming comptroller of the Kordite Corp. He then served as controller of the consumer products division, Philco-Ford from 1962 to 1965.

Ellis joined Irving Trust in 1966 as a vice president, and was elected senior vice president and comptroller the same year. Three years later, he was named executive vice president and comptroller.

Soviet Foreign Policy Includes Better U.S. Relations, Visitor Says

Speaking at one of Juniata's World Issues Luncheons in February, Yevgeniy Afanasyev, Second Secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, said that the Soviet Union wants to improve relations with the United States.

At the same time however, he warned that his nation would not let anyone upset the current military balance between socialism and capitalism.

During his day-long visit to campus, sponsored by Juniata's Peace and Conflict Studies Committee, Afanasyev defended his country's intervention in Afghanistan, saying that the action was in response to a plea for help from the Afghan government.

Concerning Poland, Afanasyev noted the important role that country plays in the Warsaw Pact. Although he expressed confidence in the Polish government, Afanasyev would not rule out Soviet action in Poland.

The World Issues Luncheons, held several times each month, feature speakers from on and off campus discussing topics of international importance.

Yevgeniy Afanasyev, Second Secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, talked about Soviet foreign policy at a World Issues Luncheon in February. Afanasyev's visit to Juniata, sponsored by the Peace and Conflict Studies Committee, also included class lectures, and an evening film presentation.

Vincent A. Sarni

PPG Industries Names Vincent Sarni Senior Vice Pres.

PPG Industries, Inc., of Pittsburgh, has announced the election of Vincent A. Sarni as senior vice president. He had been group vice president — chemicals, since 1977.

A member of Juniata's Board of Trustees since 1979, Sarni is currently foundation/corporate gifts chairman of the Sports+Recreation Center phase of the college's Century II Campaign.

Sarni, who was the featured speaker at Juniata's 100th commencement ceremony in May, 1979, joined PPG in 1968 as vice president of sales and marketing for industrial chemicals. The following year, he was elected vice president and general manager of industrial chemicals.

From 1975-77, Sarni was vice president and general manager of PPG's chemicals operations.

Sarni is a native of Cranston, R.I. and was associated with Olin Corporation for 12 years before joining PPG. He holds a B.S. degree in accounting from the University of Rhode Island, and attended New York University Graduate School of Business. He completed the advanced management program of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

In 1979, Juniata awarded him an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Sarni and his wife, Dorothy, reside in Mount Lebanon, and have three children, including Vincent A., Jr., a 1978 Juniata graduate.

Dr. Lepoutre was back at Yale on a leave from Lille and Dr. Schettler was a graduate student working with Dr. Lepoutre's former advisor.

The two professors, who discovered many common interests, remained in touch, and in 1975-76, Dr. Schettler took a sabbatical leave from Juniata to study and conduct research at Lille. It was at this time that the idea of a student exchange was born, being initiated during the 1976-77 academic year.

With the student exchange underway and working well, Dr. Lepoutre visited Juniata in 1979, and the idea of a faculty exchange was conceived.

"Our chemistry department committed itself to establishing a major solar energy project," Dr. Schettler explains, "and Dr. Lepoutre's department at Lille, under his direction, already had a strong solar energy project underway. It was obvious that a faculty exchange could supplement the student exchange in providing us with the expertise needed to start our research."

And Dr. Lepoutre, commenting about Lille's view of the faculty exchange, says: "We strongly believe

Alumni Admissions Program Begins Third Successful Year

The Alumni Admissions Program, now beginning its third year, has made an extremely valuable contribution to the total admissions program at Juniata, according to Marsha L. Kyper, assistant director of admissions and program coordinator.

So far this year, alumni admissions volunteers have attended 22 high school college nights that otherwise would not have been covered by Juniata.

In addition, volunteers have logged more than 100 phone calls to potential freshmen. By the end of April, 15 spring receptions for accepted students, hosted by alumni volunteers, will have taken place.

Any alumnus can become an admissions volunteer, and training is available. Mrs. Kyper notes that workshops are held on campus each summer to help alumni volunteers reacquaint themselves with the college.

"Frequent changes occur on campus. Even if a person is a recent alumnus, it is impossible to keep up with everything that is happening at Juniata," Mrs. Kyper adds. She also points out that persons who attend the campus workshops often conduct local workshops for other volunteers in their area.

Attendance at a workshop, either on or off campus, is a requirement for participation in high school college nights and phone work, but not receptions. The workshops are designed to give alumni a clear understanding of the admissions system, standards and policies. "As a result, the volunteer will be able to strike a balance by fortifying important past experiences with data on the Juniata of today," Mrs. Kyper points out.

Alumni who are interested in participating in the admissions volunteer program should contact the admissions office, or call Mrs. Kyper at 814-643-4310, extension 420.

Applications Available for Baker Peace Scholarship

Each year, Juniata offers a $1,000 Baker Peace Scholarship to an eligible member of the entering freshman class. This scholarship, offered through the Peace and Conflict Studies Committee, is awarded on the basis of merit, and may be renewed each academic year if certain conditions are met.

To qualify, applicants should normally rank in the upper 20% of their high school class, have above-average SAT scores and be interested in peace-related issues.

Additional information on the scholarship may be obtained by contacting The Rev. Dr. M. Andrew Murray, campus minister at Juniata.

greater contact between students and faculty members.

"There is much more out-of-class contact between faculty members and students at Juniata than at Lille," Dr. Lepoutre continues. "For example, the science center here is open at night and weekends, allowing both faculty members and students greater opportunity to pursue their research and to interact with one another. At Lille, on the other hand, buildings are generally closed evenings and weekends."

It is, says Dr. Lepoutre, the research opportunities and the interaction between the scientists that are making both the student and faculty exchange program successful.

In 1960, the French professor explains, he met one of Juniata's chemistry professors, Dr. Paul D. Schettler, Jr., while both were at Yale.

AROUND CAMPUS WITH FACULTY AND STAFF

■ Several members of the college community have participated in Juniata's World Issues Luncheon series, sponsored by the Peace and Conflict Studies Committee.

In February, DR. RICHARD J. MOUW, the J. Omar Good Visiting Distinguished Professor of Evangelical Christianity, discussed South Africa's apartheid policies, and the extent these policies are tied to the Dutch Reformed Church there.

DR. KENNETH W. CROSBY, professor of history, emeritus, was the guest at two World Issues Luncheons.

In February, he and his wife, Jane, outlined the changes that have taken place in Cuba during the last 30 years. The Crosbys visited the island nation in the early 1950's, and again in January.

Dr. Crosby was back again in March to discuss "The Social Democratic Movement in the U.S." Noting that many of our western allies have social democratic governments, Dr. Crosby shared his views on the small social democratic movement in the United States.

■ At the annual dinner of Huntingdon Business and Industry, Inc., held January 28 in Baker Refectory, CLAYTON N. PHEASANT '65, director of development and church relations, was elected to HB&I's Board of Directors for a three-year term.

■ President FREDERICK M. BINDER, who chaired a team of 11 college and university educators evaluating Stockton (N.J.) State College, presented his evaluation report February 13, to the Commission of Higher Education, Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools.

■ The Keystone Health Systems Agency has announced the appointment of DR. DUANE F. STROMAN, professor of sociology and department chairman, to its Long Term Care Task Force. The group does health planning for a six county region in south central Pennsylvania.

■ JAMES A. QUINLAN, director of physical plant, has written a new training manual, "Examining Energy Conservation Basics," published by Technical Publishing Co. (TPC) of Barrington, Ill.

TPC Training Systems will use the manual in its supervised self-instruction program to train educational, hospital, institutional, industrial and commercial maintenance personnel.

Quinlan's manual covers the history and usage of fossil fuels, synthetic fuels and alternative energy sources presently in developmental stages. He also examines the consumption of each fuel, the known reserves worldwide and the future potentials.

James A. Quinlan

The book goes on to identify practical conservation efforts that can and should be made by craftsmen, and how to conduct an energy audit.

AROUND CAMPUS WITH STUDENTS

Miss Shuttleworth performed songs by such composers as Bellini, Gluck, Vivaldi, Schubert, Richard Strauss, Rachmaninoff and Poulenc.

Her appearance on campus was partially sponsored by The Kathryn M. Langdon Memorial Trust.

■ CRAIG KARGES, renowned mentalist, amazed his Juniata audience February 14, with a mixture of visual mystification, mind reading, blindfold vision and predictions.

The young entertainer, who has been performing since he was 12, was assisted by members of the audience in several of his acts.

■ The Will Judy Lectureship program, established in 1958 through a gift from the late Capt. Will Judy, brought DR. HUGO T. ENGELHARDT, JR. to campus in March.

Dr. Engelhardt, Rosemary Kennedy Professor of the Philosophy of Medicine at Georgetown University, and the author of several books and articles, discussed "Bioethics in a Pluralist Society" with an audience in Oller Auditorium.

While on campus, Dr. Engelhardt also addressed several classes.

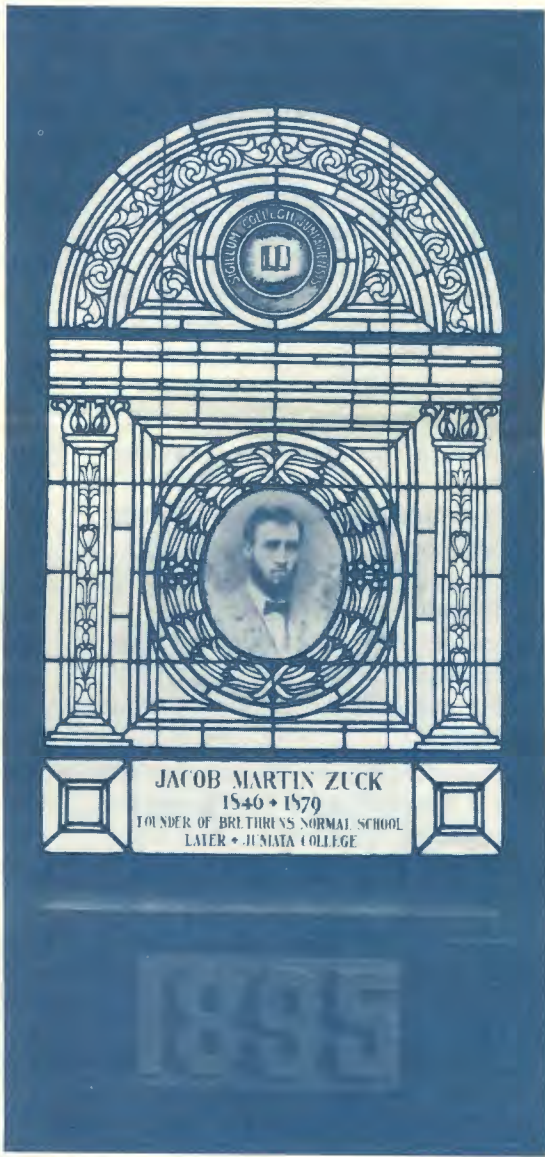

AND VISITORS, TOO

Mr. Jack Daniels Original Silver Cornet Band, returned to Juniata March 13 and turned back the clock to the 19th century. When the Lynchburg, Tenn. band first appeared at Juniata two years ago, their popularity with the audience was immense. This performance was equally popular, as hundreds of people came to hear the band play.

Grapplers Only Winter Team to Achieve Winning Record

A season that began with high expectations, ended in disappointing fashion, as only Bill Berrier's grapplers were able to forge a winning record. The women's basketball team did rally near the end of its season to gain a berth in the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs, but a season-ending loss to old nemesis Scranton also resulted in a losing record.

The men's cagers put together three wins in the middle of the season, and were actually in MAC playoff contention with five conference games remaining, but a skein of 10 consecutive losses at the end of the season gave the Tribe their second 6-16 season in succession.

WRESTLING (8-6-1)

Although not matching last year's record 11-4-1 mark, the grapplers had a successful season nonetheless. The Tribe finished eighth in the MAC Championships, several crucial injuries preventing the team from placing higher.

Sophomore Chris Young paced the Indians this season with a 19-3-1 record. Young placed third in the MAC's and qualified for the NCAA Division III National Championships, but a close first-round loss ended his season.

Classmate Keith Sherbine also had an outstanding season, finishing 16-5-0 and placing fourth in the conference tourney. Junior heavyweight Dan Jendrzewski tied for the second-most victories on the squad, going 16-8 and placing fifth in the MAC's.

Senior co-captain Rob Funk finished 15-5-0, but an injury in the conference tourney cost him a chance at a return trip to the nationals. Classmate Bob Gay battled injuries all season to finish 9-11, with a severe cut ending his season in the MAC's where he was wrestling extremely well.

"I'm fairly pleased with our performance this season," Berrier noted after the conference tourney. "We faced an improved dual-meet schedule and wrestled up to our potential in all but one match. I was somewhat disappointed with our performance at the MAC tournament, but we had quite a few young wrestlers, so I'm chalking this one up to experience and looking forward to next season."

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL (10-11)

With four starters back from last season's 24-4 squad, another outstanding season was predicted for the Indians this year. But an extremely difficult early-season schedule and the inability of anyone to step forward and take the spot vacated by Nancy Zinkham '80, doomed the Tribe to a losing record.

The Indians, 3-9 at one point, rallied to win 10 of their last 12 games and qualified for the MAC playoffs by placing second in the MAC NorthWest Section. But Scranton, who handed the Indians all four losses last winter, continued its domination over the Tribe, posting an 80-46 victory in the Northern Division semifinals.

In all, five of the Tribe's losses came to teams ranked in the Top 20 nationally (Division III), while three others came at the hands of Top-10 Eastern units (Divisions II-III).

Senior All-American forward Julie George captured almost every major statistical crown for the Tribe, leading the squad in scoring (16.2 ppg), rebounding (13.7 rpg), free throw percentage (.709, 83-117) and blocked shots (14).

The holder of 37 Juniata single-game, season and career marks, George became the Indian's career rebounding leader, raising her total to 1130 (13.6). The Tribe's career scoring leader entering the season, George ended her career with 1382 points (16.7). This season she set an Indian single-game mark for points, scoring 34 against St. Francis.

Sophomore guard-forward Judy Pepoy was the squad's second leading scorer (9.1) and was fourth in rebounding. After just two seasons, Pepoy ranks fifth in career scoring (508) and fourth in rebounding (276).

On the promising side, freshmen Marie Glendenning and Meg Stover finished second and third, respectively, among their teammates in rebounding. Glendenning averaged 7.6 rebounds per outing, while Stover chipped in with seven each game.

Poor shooting plagued the Indians from the outset, the team hitting just .326 from the field and .599 from the charity stripe. The Tribe set a single-game standard for points on an opponent's court (91 against St.

Francis), but its 10 defeats and six straight losses were also Indian records.

MEN'S BASKETBALL (6-16)

For coach Pat Frazier's squad, it was another frustrating season, as the Indians lost several close games that could have turned the season around. Inconsistency plagued the Tribe and Frazier '61, couldn't find a starting unit that played well together two games in a row. Adding to the team's problems were the mid-season losses of top scorers Chet Sowal and Tim Nagle.

Junior forward Joe Chuba led the squad in both scoring (10.4) and rebounding (8.2), but only one teammate, freshman guard Dan Feruck (10.0), joined him in double figures. Sophomore center Andy Witmer followed Chuba in rebounding, averaging 5.7 caroms per contest.

There were no seniors on the squad, and only three juniors. In addition, as many as three freshmen started in some games, so Tribe followers should see considerable improvement next season.

Coaches Eye Spring Season with Hope and Anticipation

As the weather turns warmer, thoughts naturally turn to outdoor activities. The Indian spring sports teams have dodged the snowflakes long enough to give the coaches some indication of what the season may bring. All six (softball is added as a varsity sport this spring) coaches say they could have quite successful seasons, if a number of untested athletes come through.

Baseball coach Bill Berrier looks to a strong junior class to lead the Tribe to another MAC Sectional title and NCAA playoff berth. Last year's top two hitters, Jeff Miles (Jr., CF, .359) and Carl Pavolic (So., C, .342) return, as do .300-plus hitters Don Pote (Jr., DH-OF, .327) and Ed McEwen (Jr., 2B, .315). Miles and McEwen were both All-Conference picks as was sophomore southpaw Bob McDonald (4-4, 56 strikeouts). Replacements must be found for two-time MVP Gwyn Woodward (SS), and pitcher-first-basemen Chris Lyons and

Julie George Named Academic All-Region

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story – about Juniata senior Julie George – appeared in the Feb. 24, 1981 edition of the Daily News. It was written by another Juniata grad, Marian Sue McElwee '61, and these portions are used with her permission and that of the paper's editor, James D. Hunt '56.

By MARIAN SUE McELWEE

Julie George, senior sparkplug of the Juniata College women's basketball team, is one of 22 student athletes named to the NCAA Region II Academic All-American basketball team.

The 5-10 center-forward from Pittsburgh is included among the 10 men and 12 women selected from the more than 75 nominees by popular vote of the Region II college and university sports information directors.

Nominations were made in two divisions, college and university, with five positions on each team.

The regional team is a part of the national program sponsored by CoSIDA (College Organization of Sports Information Directors of America) in cooperation with the NCAA.

NCAA Region II, one of the strongest regions in the country for Academic All-America nominees, includes all colleges and universities in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. To be nominated, a player must be a regular on his or her team and must have at least a 3.0 grade point average or better. Freshmen are not eligible.

All members of the Region II team are starters on their respective teams and most hold two or more school records. The average scholastic average on the regional squad (both men and women) is 3.51, with the college division women having the highest grade point average as a group, at 3.6.

Julie, a marketing research-management major at Juniata, has a grade point average of 3.43 to date.

Julie M. George '81

Nancy Latimore, coach of Juniata's women cagers, said yesterday, after notification of George's selection: "Julie has been one of the most outstanding student athletes Juniata has been blessed with. She's made contributions to both the basketball and volleyball programs, not only with her athletic abilities, but also with her leadership abilities and personality. She's a fine young woman who, I am sure, will be a big success after her Juniata years."

A first team All-American (American Women's Sports Foundation) and second-team Academic All-American last year, Julie holds 37 single game, season and career records at Juniata. She has led the Indians in scoring and rebounding during the last three seasons.

The alumna of Plum High School is the first Indian to score 1,000 points and the first to pull down 1,000 rebounds.

In addition to being a Dean's List student, an Alumni Support Fund Scholar and a "Juniata Woman of the Year" (1979-80), Julie has been a co-captain and MVP of Juniata's volleyball team. She has also served as a captain of the basketball team the past two years.

Sharon Ammarell, but must find help in the lower half of the line-up if the Tribe is to improve upon last season's 3-4 mark.

Second-year golf coaches Drs. Arnie Tilden and Duane Stroman hope that a year's experience will make the difference this season, as no new faces appear likely to be in this spring's line-up. MAC co-medalist senior Steve Stroup is back, however, along with 1978's number-two player, senior Ed Marucca, who sat out last season.

In softball, finally, first-year mentor Bill Latimore is counting on freshman pitcher Michele Wengryn, along with sophomore hurlers Didi Pinkstone and Sara Sonntag, to make the Tribe competitive in their tough MAC Section.

Presidential Advisors Get Guidance from Alumnus

The Schwenkfelders, one of the smallest organized churches in the world, have less than 2,700 members in five congregations in or near Philadelphia and Valley Forge.

Dr. Jack R. Rothenberger '52, is pastor of the largest congregation, the Central Schwenkfelder Church in Worcester. But something much more interesting makes Dr. Rothenberger's church stand out.

Two members of the congregation, Richard S. Schweiker and Andrew L. "Drew" Lewis, Jr., are members of President Ronald Reagan's cabinet. Such a situation is unusual to say the least, but when you are talking about a congregation with 1,350 members, it is truly a unique occurrence.

Members of the Schwenkfelder Church are descendants or followers of Casper Schwenkfeld von Ossig, a 16th-century Silesian nobleman and Protestant Reformation contemporary of Martin Luther and John Calvin.

"What makes this so special to us," Dr. Rothenberger said, "is that two of our members will serve as advisors to our president on his cabinet. In a way, they follow in the steps of Casper Schwenkfeld von Ossig, who was an advisor to his duke in the courts of Silesia in the 16th century."

Schweiker, Secretary of Health and Human Services and a former U.S. Senator from Pennsylvania, and Lewis, Secretary of Transportation and once a candidate for Governor, are long-time friends and neighbors. Both served as Sunday School teachers in the Schwenkfelder Church.

In his January church letter, Dr. Rothenberger urged his members to "pray for Dick and Drew as they give witness to their Christian faith and ideals in their important new responsibilities."

Brumbaugh. The house is still standing on Branch Street, owned by Mrs. Luther. His father was a carpenter for the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad, and his recollections of his youth are most interesting.

"Father didn't know the word 'psychology,' but he certainly knew how to use it," Rev. Brumbaugh recalled as he described his father, who only had a third grade education. His father was very strict with the family of eight boys and four girls, and expected everyone to do their share around the house. He taught them never to speak unkindly about anyone.

The farm he now resides on was the home of his great-grandfather, who built the log barn in 1833. A stone in the foundation bears the date. His great-grandfather, Samuel Brumbaugh, came from Morrison's Cove to Riddlesburg in the early 1800's, then settled on the farm. It was passed on to his son, Jacob, who died at the age of 42, and the family had to sell out.

Rev. Brumbaugh and wife Ruth, were living in Ohio in 1947 when his doctor advised him to "find a farm" and get away from a busy pace. Circumstances led him back home, and he was able to purchase the old home place from Mrs. Elizabeth Clawson in that year. He has lived there ever since, along the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River near Saxton and Riddlesburg.

Rev. Brumbaugh is also proud of his Indian ancestry. His great-grandfather on his mother's side of the family was named William Wing West Moon, and was a member of the Powhatan tribe of Pocahontas, Va. When West Moon married, he took the last name "West," dropping his tribal name.

Christopher W. Umble '74, chairman of the 1980-81 Annual Support Fund, presented a mid-year progress report at the February meeting of the Juniata Alumni Council. The goal of this year's campaign, which concludes June 30, is $240,000.

On July 5, 1930, Daniel M. Brumbaugh was licensed into the ministry at a meeting held at the Stonerstown Church of the Brethren. It was conducted by Elder O.R. Myers, member of the District Ministerial Board, with Elder J.A. Myers assisting. Rev. Brumbaugh was ordained one year later.

Rev. Brumbaugh spent nearly 30 years as a school teacher, of which three and a half years were in Ohio. He started teaching in the Saxton area in 1948, and retired from the Tussey Mountain School District as an English teacher in 1976. He was well liked among his students.

In addition to his other duties, he has worked on his farm over the years, and still tends to a herd of 40 beef cattle and fields of corn.

This year, he announced his intention to retire as pastor.

Frances Nyce Cited for Service to UNICEF

Frances Clemens Nyce '46, was recently presented with twin honors upon her retirement as volunteer state representative for UNICEF in Maryland.

An honorary citation from the Board of Directors of the United States Committee for UNICEF was presented to Mrs. Nyce "for distinguished conduct and fidelity in the performance of outstanding service to the world's children."

James P. Grant, executive director of UNICEF, made the presentation at a meeting at Johns Hopkins University. On behalf of UNICEF, Grant also presented Mrs. Nyce with a sterling silver proof of the 1980 United Nations Peace Medal.

Before completing a nine-year stint as volunteer state coordinator for UNICEF's year-round education and fund-raising activities, Mrs. Nyce was instrumental in creating a continuing 29-member citizen's support group, the Maryland Committee for UNICEF, of which she has served as secretary.

Five Students Attend State Band Festival

Five Juniata students participated in the 34th Inter-Collegiate Band Festival held March 20-22 at Lebanon Valley College in Annville.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Collegiate Bandmasters Association, the band consisted of 155 students from 28 Pennsylvania colleges and universities, chosen from 283 applicants.

Frank Piersol, director emeritus of bands at the University of Iowa, was the guest conductor.

The five students who attended are sophomores Margaret L. Donahue of Hershey, flute; John Farrugia of Commack, N.Y., percussion; Richard Fonda of State College, tuba; Kathleen A. Kahler of Johnstown, clarinet, and freshman Daniel S. Weyandt of Duncansville, double bass.

The students were accompanied to the festival by Ibrook Tower, assistant professor of music and director of instrumental ensembles at Juniata.

An honorary citation for many years of service as volunteer state representative for UNICEF in Maryland was presented to Frances Clemens Nyce '46 (second left), upon her retirement. James P. Grant (left), executive director of UNICEF, made the presentation which was witnessed by Herbert R. O'Connor, Jr. (second right), president of the Maryland Committee for UNICEF, and Mrs. Clarence D. Long (right), Maryland Committee member.

Reunion time is just around the corner. The date is Saturday, May 23, 1981. All classes ending in "1" and "6" will be having a special dinner on May 23 beginning at 5:30 p.m. Alumni should already have received their special announcement and reunion questionnaire. Please plan to attend and make your reservations early. Campus housing will again be available this year. The Alumni Office welcomes your suggestions and comments in an effort to make this the best reunion year ever.

The Annual Alumni Luncheon is a special feature of reunion day. The luncheon begins at 11:45 a.m. on Saturday and attracts not only alumni from reunion classes and The Alumni Council, but also faculty members and staff, special guests, and the recipients of the Alumni Service and Achievement Awards.

Two alumni gatherings occurred since the last issue of the Alumni Bulletin. President Frederick M. Binder and his wife, Grace, welcomed alumni from Colorado to a dinner meeting in Denver at The Brown Palace. Arrangements were handled by Philip J. Sipling '69. The big event of the winter alumni season was the gathering of our friends in Florida. More than 85 alumni and friends met at the Sebring Church of the Brethren for a very special program. Following remarks by President Binder who was again accompanied by his wife, alumni were treated to an outstanding performance of the Juniata College Concert Choir. The Choir, directed by Bruce A. Hirsch, made eight other appearances for audiences totaling more than 3,000 people. Their tour included a stop-over and concert at Disney World. Our thanks to J. Ross Schmidt '33 for his helpfulness in co-ordinating the choir appearance and alumni luncheon in Sebring and to Pastor Ronald D. Petry for arranging the choir's appearance at the church services in Sebring.

Alumni Club activity will have reached a peak by mid-April. Club functions already scheduled include: Southern New Jersey, March 21, club president Joan C. Van Note '66; April 3, Baltimore Area, William P. '48 and Frances C. Nyce '46 club presidents; April 4, Columbus, Ohio, William J. Anna Groninger Smith
Scholarship Established

A scholarship for deserving students who plan to enter the field of business, has been established at Juniata by the late Anna Groninger Smith of Port Royal, who died Nov. 20, 1980.

The scholarship was made possible through the residue of gift annuities and through a bequest from Mrs. Smith, who served 43 years as secretary and executive secretary to four Juniata presidents, retiring in 1964.

Mrs. Smith attended the business school at Juniata from 1919 to 1921. She joined the college staff in 1921 as secretary to President I. Harvey Brumbaugh. She next served in the same post with former Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh, who served his second presidential term from 1924-1930. She was executive secretary to Presidents Charles C. Ellis, 1930-43, and Calvert N. Ellis, 1943-64.

Mrs. Smith also assisted Dr. Charles C. Ellis in preparing the manuscript for his book, Juniata College - the History of Seventy Years (1876-1946). For 15 years, Mrs. Smith served as registrar and treasurer of the Pennsylvania School of Alcohol Studies, which met annually at Juniata.

Ruth Kennedy, Wife
of Trustee, Succumbs
December 10

Mrs. Ruth Kennedy, wife of Board of Trustees member Edwin L. Kennedy, died December 10 after a long illness.

Active in alumni affairs at Ohio University, Mrs. Kennedy was always supportive of academic programs at Juniata. The Kennedys' commitment to Juniata dates back to 1969, when Mr. Kennedy was first elected to the Board.

In the words of Dr. John C. Baker '17, a fellow trustee and close friend, "I have never known of any couple less selfish and more convinced that they were not born for themselves alone."

Alumnus Honored by Congregation

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story about Rev. Daniel Brumbaugh '34 completing 50 years in the ministry, appeared in the Dec. 17, 1980, edition of The Broad Top Bulletin (Saxton). It was written by the paper's editor and publisher, Jon D. Baughman, and portions are used here with his permission.

By JON BAUGHMAN

Rev. Daniel M. Brumbaugh of R.D. 1, Saxton, well-known educator, pastor and farmer in the Saxton area, has completed 50 years in the ministry.

The 69-year-old minister, who is pastor of the Stonerstown Church of the Brethren, was recently honored at a dinner at the church.

The banquet, held Saturday evening, Nov. 29, came as a complete surprise to Rev. Brumbaugh. He was aware that the congregation had planned a family fellowship supper, which are held periodically at the church. But he did not know that it was being held for him.

A delightful program was held, at which Mrs. Freda Hollingshead read a summary of Rev. Brumbaugh's life, and many of his relatives stood and reminisced. He was presented with a needlepoint "sampler" that was made by Mrs. Doris Dilling of Hopewell, commemorating his 50 years in the ministry. The frame for the needlepoint was made with boards from the 140-year-old barn on the Brumbaugh farm, now being torn down.

In his 50 years as a minister, Rev. Brumbaugh served congregations in Ohio, Bedford and Stonerstown, and has served the Stonerstown Church of the Brethren since 1963. He has performed 281 weddings and officiated at 186 funerals.

Born at the "foot of the knob" in Saxton, May 17, 1911, Dan, as his many friends call him, is the son of Daniel M. and Elizabeth Guthridge
